

Last week when we announced the launch of the Internet Growth Alliance, we received messages of support from many people. At the IIA congress and also at the Net Visionary Awards there was widespread support for this initiative. It is still early days and many aspects of the Alliance need to be defined.

Frank Ryan, CEO of Enterprise Ireland referred to the Alliance in his speech at the Net Visionary Awards and provided words of encouragement and support. The Irish Times business pages (John Collins) also covered the story last Saturday. Many internet industry stakeholders have also provided feedback for which we are grateful.